Now, I walk on the ice.
You tar-tered old kite.

So, I can't work this key.

It must have been spring
The damned thing is jammed silent when you got flown, but there's no leaves twice, It's the same or frozen a stone. It's a strange river to be,

When the warm summer made, there was a key that flows, that once let you fly in so deeply trusted breeze.

There was rain in a so key deeply trusted that breeze.

I walked on the ice. Tat-tered old kite. I walk on the ice.
I can't work this key To you and me.
